To Whom It May Concern:

In June 2009 we purchased our home in the area of Coldstream, British Columbia. Although the home was only 5 years old and was in good condition, there were several modifications to it that we decided to undertake prior to moving in. Being new to the area and with no contacts in the building / renovation industry, we relied on the recommendation of our Real Estate agent and called Dennis Hengel from Hometown Enterprises.

The scope of our first project with Dennis involved several dimensions of change to room layout on both floors of our house. Significant modifications were made to our family room, laundry room and master bedroom, as well as the construction of two new offices and three new closets. Dennis and his team oversaw all aspects of this project with only intermittent contact and support from us who were still living in the Vancouver area or travelling out of province. Dennis, Volker, Vern and their partner trades were consistently reliable, attentive and trustworthy in a way we had never experienced before. Their focus on quality and attention to all of the details was extremely appreciated. Not only did Dennis do what he said he would at all times, he offered creative solution ideas to problems as they arose. In the end we were delighted with the final result and promised to call should a need arise in the future.

After living in our 'new' home over the next few years we decided that modifications to the exterior of the property were necessary. In addition to making significant modifications to the slope and direction of our drive way, we also decided to re-build our primary entrance and add a detached garage that would provide storage for both our RV and 2nd vehicle. Through the summer of 2011 the Hometown team once again took care of every detail. The final product was so much better than we could have ever imagined primarily because of the ideas, approach and commitment to quality provided by Dennis and his team. Our home is more comfortable, functional and valuable as a result our Hometown projects. We would highly recommend Dennis and his team to anyone looking for a professional, reliable and quality-oriented contractor.

Sincerely,
